AIM Charge Still Mounting

ST. PAUL, Minn. — U.S. District Judge Fred Nichols, presiding at the trial of two American Indian Movement (AIM) leaders, got a kick Tuesday at some of the charges. Attorney Kenneth Tjenes explained each charge to the jury. Tjenes said the charges were "unsubstantiated" and "unsubstantiated."

mass of data collected by the Agent in Charge, Joseph Tjenes, showed him government's case. He declined comment other than to say the potential evidence. Under federal court rules, defendants are entitled to see such statements at least 30 days before a witness appears, and other material prior to trial. If available, in court, some statements of the problems came through in recent days. R.D. Hurd, assistant U.S. attorney, said there were 10,000 "verbal" FBI files relating to the conspiracy. Tjenes explained each charge to the jury. Tjenes said the charges were "unsubstantiated" and "unsubstantiated."

way they've handled disclosure of statements by witnesses and other persons. Tjenes said the charges were "unsubstantiated" and "unsubstantiated."

Today, Attorney William Kuntze said it will charge "governmental misconduct" and "unsubstantiated" and "unsubstantiated."

Granny Mixes Cheese Spread

Granny's cheese spread, this week, is flexible enough to be a cocktail spread, sandwich mix — or a dip.

If you mix it in a blender, she says, add pimento juice and this will turn out "soupy" enough for a dip. If you want the spread, mix it with an electric mixer.

It goes well with beer after a hard day's work, she adds.

Granny Groom, now on a fast-free diet, is suffering while thinking about food — "I can't eat anymore," she moans. "Everyone's watching my diet like me."

She gives a tasty tip, however: Instead of baking ordinary pop, bake three rounds of crust; fast; alternate crusts and filling, with the top layer being filling; put on marmalade and hake; cut in wedges, like cake, to serve.

"Be careful taking it out of the oven, though," she says. "The top layer will slide."

SFPC CHEESE SPREAD

1 pound sharp cheddar cheese

1 can green chilis

¼ tsp pimento

About 6 large, sweet pickles.

Grate cheese and put in mixing bowl; add green chilis and pimento (which have been chopped fine), beat until smooth and creamy. Add finely chopped pickles. Use at room temperature for easy spreading.

Mrs. Seminoole,

Age 59, Dies

Funeral services for Fannie Seminoole, 59, were held Tuesday at the Lame Deer Catholic Church. Burial took place in the Lame Deer Cemetery.

Mrs. Seminoole died March 4 in the Porphy hospital. She was the widow of Dabert Seminoole, who died in 1961.

Born in Kingfisher, Okla., she moved to the Northern Cheyenne reservation about 40 years ago.

She is survived by two sons, Clarence Seminoole of San Francisco, Calif., and Joe Seminoole of Lead, S. D., and one daughter, Delberta Engelman of Minneapolis, Minn. She had 15 grandchildren.
